Cultural heritage represents a glorious past, a meaningful present, and a promising future. The success of safeguarding and managing cultural heritage highly relies on local communities. They are the custodians of tangible heritage and the carriers of intangible heritage; they are the critical stakeholders who hold values to historic places and the key actors who can sustain the shared values for future generations.

The Third International Conference on Heritage of China focuses on the theme “Heritage and Community- Shared Heritage”. It invites professionals and scholars from all over the world to contribute and share the real-world experience in practice and/or research findings.
